Lost Lover cielixsebastian

Hey guys this is my first time writing on here so don't be so hard on me. I also have other accounts on my name on there is cielixsebastian1, I also have another account on my name on there is Demon lover, and I have an account on my name on there is cielixsebastian. So I do have other stories and I do try to keep up with them but if I tend to abandon them please don't be afraid to pm me and tell me what I haven't updated but please be nice about it. now this is a Ciel x Sebastian story, so if you don't like boy x boy/yaoi then don't read. please comment and ill talk back and I'll definitely add my stories from my other accounts on here. I hope you all like it. 3 u all!

_Disclaim: I do not own ANY of the characters or music that may show up in this story._ **

>Ciel had finally gotten his revenge, though to get it his servants had to die while destroying Pluto (the demon dog) since he was setting England on fire for the angels. The servants knew they wouldn't make it out alive, but they didn't care they only wanted to serve their master. Sebastian had killed Angela and Ash though he knew that was a big mistake on his part. He should have told his master his feelings before this, he should have made a new contract with him to make him his lover and still get his revenge, but he didn't. Now, look at where they are. Ciel sitting on a stone bench that seems to be in the middle of no where, but Sebastian knew where they were. (If you watched the anime you should know where they are.) Sebastian stood in front of Ciel, his heart breaking knowing he had to do this. He bent down to Ciel and whispered softly onto his ear. "Close your eyes my love. I'll make this quick and painless." Ciel blushed darkly and nods softly, closing his eyes for him.

Now, there were many reasons why he has to take his soul. One (1), if he didn't take his soul he would be punished for falling for his "food". Two (2), if he kept him alive after their contract had ended any longer than necessary, then another demon could take his soul easily. That would be worse than just taking it himself, because it could be one horrible experience if it's done so harshly. And three (3), if he didn't take his soul then he would have to keep him in the human world. That's not where demons belong, after the contract is over demons are supposed to go back to the underworld, especially the higher level demons or older demons that are at least seven centuries (700) years old. The only way for a younger demons can get into the underworld is if an older or higher level demon takes them. well now back to Sebastian taking Ciel's soul.

When Ciel closed his eyes, Sebastian then took Ciel's soul, Ciel's body went limp and Sebastian picked him up and took him to the undertaker. He could feel blood tears going down his cheeks as he hands the lifeless body to Undertaker. Sebastian didn't even stay for the funeral, he went on back to the underworld where he belonged. Ciel was buried beside his parents and other family members that he really never knew about. Now I know what you all are thinking. Oh no! He's dead! no he's not dead.

What they don't know is that Sebastian didn't eat all of his soul that he thought he did. Ciel was slowly changing into a demon.
